National Conference on Diversity, Race & Learning May 1-2

The Annual National Conference on Diversity, Race & Learning (NCDRL) at The Ohio State University is one of the university's most comprehensive conferences that focus on issues of diversity, cultural inclusion and acceptance. In accordance with the university's philosophy and mission of OSU's Office of Diversity and Inclusion along with numerous Big 10 diversity initiatives, we host this conference to strengthen and make new strides toward the goal of meaningful change. The conference offers a multi-leveled examination of "diversity" as a concept and its implementation within institutions of higher education, the corporate world, the religious community, the larger community, including public service. The themes examine, through participant discourse, ways to effectively bridge the economic, political and socio-educational divides that continue to be pertinent in the American social landscape.

Help American Red Cross Find Young Leaders

Make an impact on students in your community. We need your help to spread the word to high school and college students about a great leadership program. Leaders Save Lives is an opportunity for students to help save lives with the American Red Cross. Students may also become eligible to win a scholarship^ and earn an Amazon.com Gift Card.

Here's how students can get involved. Check out Leaders Save Lives and sign up to host a summer blood drive. Recruit friends and family to give blood. Feel great about the accomplishment of helping save lives with the American Red Cross! Encourage the students you know to sign up to host a Leaders Save Lives blood drive during summer break. Thank you for supporting the blood program and the youth in your community!
